Biggest Crowd of Series. This was the biggest crowd that ever saw a world series game. There were 42,620 packed in the grand stand and bleachers, and in a sort of corral beyond center field. In the first game here becenter field. In the first game here be-marvel of architecture and design and tween the Red Sox and the Phillies last has become one of the favorite haunts of year there were 42,320 present,

It was Columbus Day, a legal holiday That undoubtedly had something to do with the size of the crowd; that and the fact that it seemed to be the general POLICE ARREST MEN opinion that the Sox would close up the series today,

The historians of the diamond, masseup in the press box, officially closed their dog-eared score books on the struggle only when slender young Everett Scott, short-fielding sensation of the series caught a fly from the bat of the veteran Mike Mowrey in the ninth, but as a mat ter of fact the game was over long be fore that,

It was really over after the third, when the Sox broke out in front from a tie score through an opening provided by Dodger inefficiency.

Shore Allows Three Hits.

From that moment until the end "Long" Shore, the drawly-voiced, high-pocketed lad from North Carolina, held the Dodgers at the bend in his curve. He gave them but three hits in the whole game, while the Dodgers were bogging down back of big Ed Pfeffer, as they have bogged down behind their other hurlers. Somehow, after the third, no one seemed expect the Dodgers to rally. In the first game they came from far behind on "Long" Shore and drove him from the mound in the ninth inning, but today it became apparent to all that the North Carolinian had them in the hollow of his tebacco-stained glove.

Besides that the Dodgers played in a fashion that gave the observer an im-They seemed pression of helplessness. o be playing without spirit. They got one-run lead on the Red Sox in the econd inning, but the Red Sox tied it up in their end of the very same inning, girls.

also fell afoul of his own particular hoodoo again today, but Ivan has the advantage over Wheat of having oc-cupled the position of hero for a few fleeting hours.

It would be most unkind, however, to single out any member of the Brooklyn club as a target for aspersion. It is better to draw the kindly mantle of silence over their short-cominus and to gree with Uncle Wilbert Robinson that they done their durndest."

This series demonstrates pretty conclusively that there is something about American League that makes it 25 per cent stronger than the old

National League. An official today, of the latter organization, admitted this much.

The Boston Sox won the American League pennant after being battled to a close finish by several other clubs.

Brooklyn, the strongest and the most consistent club in the National League, had as one of its leading contenders right down to the last few days of the season club that was easy for the Red Sox last year. Would Abolish Series.

Now that the world's series of 1916 i over, baseball men are saying that the best thing that could happen to the National League and the game in general is the abolition of the series for at least several years to come. The series—and this season's series more than any other-is taking the specles of petty graft on the public. Immediately after the first game some of the ball players were talking not of Closing of U.S. Waters to Belligerents Is Urged.

The joint State and Navy Neutrality Board has submitted to the State Department its report and recommendations concerning submarine warfare off the American coast. SUBMARINE DISCUSSION BANNED IN REICHSTAG

Berlin (via Sayville wireless), Oct. 12,-The budget committee of the Reichstag, unable to reach an agreement on the submarine question, has voted 24 to 4 against a discussion of the subject in open session. This was stated in a written report in the Reichstag today by Maj. Ernst Bassermann, leader of the National Liberals.

The decision of the budget committee not to discuss the submarine issue in the open Reichstag session is significant since this avoids the general debate which had been expected to make Chancellor vor Bethmann-Hollweg the storm This much-heralded debate he looked for by the chancellor's opponents to bring about a change of policy in favor of "reckless" U-boat warfare.
